Did you know that the 21st Century is the beginning of the Ocean Era? Ocean-related industries are growing fast in many parts of the world. This is the age in which humanity will face the ocean. Today, more and more people are moving to the coastal areas: 60% of the world's population live within 60 KM of the coastlines! This figure may reach 75% by 2020. The new frontier of the world is not space, it is the oceans, where there is an abundance of undiscovered resources and potential!

Demographers expect the world's population to reach 9 billion by 2025. Will there be enough food, space and resources to support such a population? Many researchers predict a global famine in the 21st century. Will nations unite in solving the future problems, or will wars ensue over the remaining finite resources?
