Dear Colleague:

On Thursday, December 17, 4-5 PM (EST), the International Association of Parliamentarians for Peace, a project of Universal Peace Federation, will convene the first of a series of webinar panels, one-hour bi-partisan discussions entitled E Pluribus Unum: Conversations about America. The panels will be conducted in the spirit of the nearly forgotten motto of the United States, reminding us on every coin and paper bill that we are “Out of many, one.” If your schedule will permit, we hope you will attend.

This panel of former U.S. Representatives Dan Burton (R-IN), Bill Delahunt (D-MA), Dana Rohrabacher (R-CA) and Loretta Sanchez (D-CA) is one in a series of nationwide conversations about “working across the aisle” politically and socially. No one has said it will be easy given the current climate, but every species on the planet will tell you cooperation is essential for survival.

E Pluribus Unum Conversations about America

A discussion sponsored by the International Association of Parliamentarians for Peace
A project of the Universal Peace Federation

Thursday, December 17, 2020 ♦ 4-5 p.m. EST
(registration link below)

Working across the aisle is how political progress happens in this country, from the city councils and state legislatures, to the U.S. Congress. Collegiality and mutual respect are among the ingredients that make politics “the art of the possible.” We invite you to join a conversation among congressional colleagues, who have worked in both opposition and compromise to enact the most significant legislation of the past thirty years. We will get their thoughts on what lies ahead for our country, as well as revisiting their best practices that have enabled the world’s melting pot to be E Pluribus Unum, “Out of many, one.”

Hon. Bill Delahunt
Member of Congress
(D-MA, 1997-2011)

Hon. Dan Burton (moderator)
Member of Congress
(R-IN, 1983-2013)

Hon. Loretta Sanchez
Member of Congress
(D-CA, 1989-2019)

Hon. Dana Rohrabacher
Member of Congress
(R-CA, 1989-2019)
