

The Washington Brief: Making Peace with North Korea: Diplomacy is the art of the possibles - Kim Jong Un Preparing for War

Michael Jenkins
March 28, 2024

Making Peace with North Korea

Diplomacy is the art of the possible

TUESDAY, APRIL 2 AT 2 PM ET

Professor of Chinese Studies,
Yonsei University Graduate
School of International Studies

Security Issues commentator;
former Special Envoy for negotiations with North Korea

Professor, Center for
Security Studies,
Georgetown University

President,
The Washington Times
Foundation

There is no trust between Pyongyang and the Seoul/Washington alliance, but there may be a couple of pathways to the DPRK. One is China. Chairman Mao said China and North Korea "are as close as teeth and lips," but careful observers see indications this is not the case. Second, President Kim is not oblivious to economic incentives. Under the right conditions, Kim Jong Un might talk, if not with South Korea, then with the U.S. He certainly has before. It takes a president to speak to a president. A conflict on the Korean Peninsula would have no winners, only losers. Nobody wants war. Not the U.S. or South Korea. Not China and not even North Korea. The success of any outreach to the DPRK depends on the framing of it. And timing.

Join guest panelist Dr. John Delury, Professor of Chinese Studies at Seoul's Yonsei University and an expert on North Korea, along with moderator Amb. Joe DeTrani, former special envoy to the six party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor at the Center for Security Studies at Georgetown University for a compelling discussion on what's possible.

This forum will be held on Tuesday, April 2, 2024 at 2 PM ET, livestreamed on washingtonbrief.org. Register at: washingtonbrief.org/register

Click Here to Register

APR 2024

2

Register ahead of time and watch the live show on Tuesday at 2 PM ET.

The Washington Times
FOUNDATION
PRESENTS

THE WASHINGTON BRIEF

Making Peace with North Korea
Diplomacy is the art of the possible

GUEST PANELIST
Dr. John Delury

Professor of Chinese Studies,
Yonsei University Graduate
School of International Studies

Ambassador
Joseph DeTrani

Security Issues commentator;
former Special Envoy for negotiations with North Korea

Dr. Alexandre Mansourov

Professor, Center for
Security Studies,
Georgetown University

Dr. Michael Jenkins

President,
The Washington Times
Foundation

There is no trust between Pyongyang and the Seoul/Washington alliance, but there may be a couple of pathways to the DPRK. One is China. Chairman Mao said China and North Korea "are as close as teeth and lips," but careful observers see indications this is not the case. Second, President Kim is not oblivious to economic incentives. Under the right conditions, Kim Jong Un might talk, if not with South Korea, then with the U.S. He certainly has before. It takes a president to speak to a president. A conflict on the Korean Peninsula would have no winners, only losers. Nobody wants war. Not the U.S. or South Korea. Not China and not even North Korea. The success of any outreach to the DPRK depends on the framing of it. And timing.

Join guest panelist Dr. John Delury, Professor of Chinese Studies at Seoul's Yonsei University and an expert on North Korea, along with moderator Amb. Joe DeTrani, former special envoy to the six party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor at the Center for Security Studies at Georgetown University for a compelling discussion on what's possible.

Tuesday, April 2, 2024 | 2-3 ET

Register at washingtonbrief.org