

Making Peace with North Korea: Diplomacy is the Art of the Possible April 2, 2024

Larry Moffitt
April 1, 2024

The Washington Times
FOUNDATION
PRESENTS

THE WASHINGTON BRIEF

Making Peace with North Korea Diplomacy is the art of the possible

GUEST PANELIST
Dr. John Delury
Professor of Chinese Studies,
Yonsei University Graduate School of International Studies

Ambassador
Joseph DeTrani
Security Issues commentator;
former Special Envoy for negotiations with North Korea

Dr. Alexandre
Mansourov
Professor, Center for Security Studies,
Georgetown University

Dr. Michael
Jenkins
President,
The Washington Times
Foundation

There is no trust between Pyongyang and the Seoul/Washington alliance, but there may be a couple of pathways to the DPRK. One is China. Chairman Mao said China and North Korea "are as close as teeth and lips," but careful observers see indications this is not the case. Second, President Kim is not oblivious to economic incentives. Under the right conditions, Kim Jong Un might talk, if not with South Korea, then with the U.S. He certainly has before. It takes a president to speak to a president. A conflict on the Korean Peninsula would have no winners, only losers. Nobody wants war. Not the U.S. or South Korea. Not China and not even North Korea. The success of any outreach to the DPRK depends on the framing of it. And timing.

Join guest panelist Dr. John Delury, Professor of Chinese Studies at Seoul's Yonsei University and an expert on North Korea, along with moderator Amb. Joe DeTrani, former special envoy to the six party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor at the Center for Security Studies at Georgetown University for a compelling discussion on what's possible.

Tuesday, April 2, 2024 | 2-3 ET
Register at washingtonbrief.org

The Washington Brief Webcast Making Peace with North Korea Diplomacy is the art of the possible

Tuesday, April 2, 2024 from 2 to 3 PM EDT

There is no trust between Pyongyang and the Seoul/Washington alliance, but there may be a couple of pathways to the DPRK. One is China. Chairman Mao said China and North Korea "are as close as teeth and lips," but careful observers see indications this is not the case. Second, President Kim is not oblivious to economic incentives. Under the right conditions, Kim Jong Un might talk, if not with South Korea, then with the U.S. He certainly has before. It takes a president to speak to a president. A conflict on the Korean Peninsula would have no winners, only losers. Nobody wants war. Not the U.S. or South Korea. Not China and not even North Korea. The success of any outreach to the DPRK depends on the framing of it. And timing.

Join guest panelist Dr. John Delury, Professor of Chinese Studies at Seoul's Yonsei University and an expert on North Korea, along with moderator Amb. Joseph DeTrani, former special envoy to the six party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor at the Center for Security Studies at Georgetown University for a compelling discussion on what's possible.

Register here to attend: washingtonbrief.org/register/

Tuesday, April 2, 2024 from 2 to 3 PM EDT

See flier attached

Larry Moffitt
Executive Director
The Washington Times Foundation
3600 New York Avenue, NE
Washington, DC 20002
SanViejo@gmail.com

The Washington Times

FOUNDATION

PRESENTS

THE WASHINGTON BRIEF

Making Peace with North Korea Diplomacy is the art of the possible

GUEST PANELIST
Dr. John Delury

Professor of Chinese Studies,
Yonsei University Graduate
School of International Studies

Ambassador
Joseph DeTrani

Security Issues commentator;
former Special Envoy for negotiations with North Korea

Dr. Alexandre
Mansourov

Professor, Center for Security Studies,
Georgetown University

Dr. Michael Jenkins

President,
The Washington Times
Foundation

There is no trust between Pyongyang and the Seoul/Washington alliance, but there may be a couple of pathways to the DPRK. One is China. Chairman Mao said China and North Korea "are as close as teeth and lips," but careful observers see indications this is not the case. Second, President Kim is not oblivious to economic incentives. Under the right conditions, Kim Jong Un might talk, if not with South Korea, then with the U.S. He certainly has before. It takes a president to speak to a president. A conflict on the Korean Peninsula would have no winners, only losers. Nobody wants war. Not the U.S. or South Korea. Not China and not even North Korea. The success of any outreach to the DPRK depends on the framing of it. And timing.

Join guest panelist Dr. John Delury, Professor of Chinese Studies at Seoul's Yonsei University and an expert on North Korea, along with moderator Amb. Joe DeTrani, former special envoy to the six party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor at the Center for Security Studies at Georgetown University for a compelling discussion on what's possible.

Tuesday, April 2, 2024 | 2-3 ET

Register at washingtonbrief.org 